CITY COUNCIL CONCLUDES TAX EQUALIZATION MEET

Assessments Raised On Upper Broadway; Lowered On Lower Broadway And On Main Street; City Budget Also Being Considered

Concluding its sessions as a board of equalization Wednesday, the city council voted in favor of changes in the assesments on Broadwey and Main street business property. Carrying out its plan, already reported in the press several weeks ago, the board allowed a reduction of 25 cents in the values of the properties on Main street, between Bradford street and the Southern Pacific railroad right of way, and a reduction of 10 per cent in the values on lower Broadway from Main street to Washington street. The assessment in the new business district on upper Broadway, between the Southern Pacific right of way and El Camino Real, was increased 15 per cent on both sides of the street. The only exceptions to the raise were the Southern Pacific Property on which the Standard Oil service station is located, and the Union Oil Co. holding at the corner of El Camino Real and Broadway.

Protests against the raise in the assessments on the upper Broadway were presented at the opening of the equalization board sessions Monday morning by Julius W. Smith, who argued that the taxes now paid by the property owners are too high in proportion to the income values of the property.

With the completion of the assessments of the city, the council is now considering the 1930-1931 budget, proposed by City Manager E. A. Rolison. The budget will come up for final adoption at the next meeting of the council on Monday night.

Kiwanians Hear of Trip to Convention

John Gill, city superintendent of schools, who was sent as delegate to the Kiwanis International convention held last month in Atlantic City, gave members of the Redwood City Kiwanis club an account of his trip Wednesday noon at the regular meeting of the club. The events at the convention as well as of the trip to the east were graphically depicted by the local man, who following the convention, went to England to visit his mother. A talk on the trip to England is being looked forward to by members of the Kiwanis club.

Next Wednesday members of the Kiwanis club will pay a visit to the recently-organized Park - Presidio club in San Francisco. About thirty members of the Redwood City club are planning to attend.

Six-Cent Rise Necessary In S. M. City Tax

San Mateo faces a rise of six cents in its tax rate for the coming year. The rise was proposed at a meeting of the city council this week, and is intended to take care of bond and interest redemption needs. The rise in thetax rate was made necessary to an error in last year's budget, according to City Manager E. P. Wilsey, which failed to raise sufficient funds to take care of the town's outstanding indebtedness.

H. A. Brion, a prominent contractor and builder of Nevada, is a guest this week of A. A. Arends in this city. These gentlemen were associated together in the contracting business in Nevada for many years.

Miniature Tournament Reaches Final Sunday

Sunday will see the final rounds of the miniature golf tournament which has been taking place for the past two weeks on Bob's Miniature Golf Course. The qualifying rounds have been played for the past two weeks and the play-offs are now taking place. Bob Felton, manager of the course reports that 64 men, women and children have qualified for competition in the tournament.

Many of the men had fought with old man par to get into the first flight to compete for the Sheriff James McGrath silver cup trophy, but only eight of them were successful. Those who missed the first flight qualified in either the second or third flights for men.

The special flight for ladies and another for children will show a great deal of competition before the winner can claim the prize. A club tournament will start soon after the close of the present open tournament, with a silver cup going to the club or business group with the winning team. A challenge to the winner of this cup has already been issued by the post office team of Mountain View, which has just won a tournament in their home town.

Bayshore Bids To Be Opened September 23

Grading Operations Nearing Redwood City; Next Unit Planned

The State Highway Cimmission on September 3 will open bids for the construction of a fourth unit of the bayshore hoghway. This unit will continue the highway from its present termination at Redwood Creek to the intersection of the new roadway with Willow road in the southern end of the county. The bids called for are for filling and grading this unit. Bids for constructing the road surface will be called for later.

The new unit will add more than five miles to the length of the Bayshore road, which is to be extended in time to San Jose. The new unit will complete the road through this county. Willow road is to be extended between the Bayshore boulivard and the Dumbarton bridge. A subway is to be constructed to carry this link under the Dumbarton line of the Southern Pacific Company. This will be built under seperate contract.

Within twenty more days the Bayshore boulevard will be completed to Redwood City. The construction crew is now at Finger's creek and is working night and day to finish its task. But few people realize how close this highway will come to Redwood City. The road will be but one thousand feet from Broadway and only 180 feet from Washington street. In coming down from San Carlos it makes a slight curve swinging into the Taeoma Mill property, near the old office building, and not far from the proposed site of the Western Pacific Railroad Company's station. In no place on the peninsula does this thoroughfare approach so closely to any town or city. This is a big advantage to the business interests of Redwood City and an advantage that should be appreciated.

In the northern part of the county construction crews are busy transforming the present macadam roadway into a permanent concrete road. It is the practice of the commission to construct a macadam road at first and then lay the concrete after the road bed has had a chance to settle for a year or so. Traffic on the northern sections is not being held up during the process.

HEAD FOR BATTERING RAM

Brown was arrested in a flat where alleged liquor was seized by agents. He resented their intrusion and began to ram the officers head down. Breathless they captured him and charged him with possession, nuisance and assault of federal officers. If convicted, Brown is liable to $7,500.

SEQUOIA HIGH SCHOOL WILL START TERM WITH INCREASED CURRICULUM

High School Opens Here Monday With Increased Enrollment; New Teachers Added To Staff; Better Courses Available

The Sequoia Union High School will open on Monday for its fall term. Prospects for an outstanding year, according to Principal A. C. Argo, are excellent at Sequoia this year.

The Sequoia Union High School offers a very rich curriculum. In addition to requiring certain fundamental work in school subjects, the school offers pupils an opportunity to select subjects in many fields, preparing them for various college courses and various occupations. Opportunities are offered pupils also to take many of the cultural subjects. Increasingly, educators of the state and of other states are pointing to Sequoia as one of the outstanding schools of the United states.

During the past year the counseling program of the school was extended with good results. It is the purpose of the school to give each pupil just the amount and type of work that he should have and to direct him along vocational, educational, social, health, and moral lines. As a result of this policy, the per cent of attendance has increased, the per cent of drop-outs has decreased, failures have decreased, and the graduates are increasingly successful in business and college.

The following teachers are new to Sequoia: Klyne Headley, music; Miss Ester Higgins, English and speech correction; Mrs. Louise Barker, biology and home gardening; Edwin Spence, English and stagecraft, and Miss Louise Watkins, English and journalism.

Mr. Headley is a graduate of the College of the Pacific, and has been teaching during the last two years in the Montezuma School for Boys. He has had professional experience. Miss Ester Higgins has an advanced degree from University of California in speech correction. Mrs. Louise Barker is a graduate of Stanford University and has beaen teaching in an Oakland High School. Edwin Spence is a University of California graduate and has been teaching in the San Diego High School. Miss Louise Watkins has been teaching in the Huntington Park High School. She is a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

A considerable advance in the enrolment at the school is expected by Principal Argo this year. This increased enrollment can be cared for this year due the additions to the school which were completed last year.

Museum Gets Fish - Lizard Of Past Ages

Field Natural History Collection Receives Geologic Specimen From Bavaria

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (UP)—The fossil skeleton of an ichthyosaurus —a fish-lizard which roamed the lands and seas more than 150,000,000 years ago, has been received by the paleontological division of the department of Geology at Field Museum of Natural History here.

The fossil, very complete and in excellent state of preservation according to officials, was found in a stone quarry in Bavaria, in a section from which lithographic shales are secured.

The block of stone which concealed the fossil split directly along the skeleton, revealing a clear impression of the fins and skin. This specimen was of a comparatively young fish-lizard, being about four feet long.

According to Prof. Elmer S. Riggs(associate curator of paleontology, full grown ichthyosaurians have attained lengths of 10 feet. This prehistoric creature had a fish-like body with a tail and fins, but with a long snout similar to that of a gar pike. The jaws were lined with sharp teeth which made it easy for the fish-lizart to prey upon fish and other marine creatures.

Skating Proving Popular Sport

The hockey games being played at the Skating rink in the Foresters Hall are attracting big crowds and much interest is being taken in the contests. The locals put up a rattling good game, particularly Captain Lennie Wuthrich, who scored the Stars' lone point.

Wednesday night the Girls' Owl team and the Nationals, both of San Francisco, played a 2 to 2 tie game on the local court.

Big Game August 22

The coming big game of the season will take place on Friday evening, August 22 in the rink at the Foresters Hall, when the Coliseum Stars of Redwood City battle the Owls of San Francisco.

George Paris is the manager of the Redwood City Skating Rink.

The American Legion post of this city will hold a dance tomorrow evening in the War Memorial Hall. Charles Ward is chairman of the committee in charge. Music will be furnished by O'Connor's orchestra.

New Flags Are Adopted

Four New Banners Must Be Included in Diplomatic Collection

GENEVA, Aug. 14 (UP) — Four more national flags have been added to the rainbow of banners which must be kept by all governments and warships to be flown on state occasions.

France carved up the Levant into four sovereign states, under the mandate of the League of Nations. Each has now picked its own flag. The Republic of Lebanon adopted the red, white and blue tricolor of France, with the addition of a green Cedar of Lebanon in the middle of the white band.

The state of Syria has adopted three, green, white and black horizontal stripes, with three red five-pointed stars on the white band.

The flag of the State of Latakia, formerly the State of Alaouites, resembles somewhat that of Japan. It is a golden sun with eleven rays rising out of the middle of a white flag. In one corner is a tiny French tricolor and in the other corners are three red triangles.

The government of Jebel-Druze has perhaps the gaudiest flag in the world, with five colors worked into a difficult composition. In the top left corner is a red, white and blue rectangle, and the remainder is like the American flag with stripes

There are but five stripes, green, red, yellow ,blue and white.

REDWOOD PARLOR TO AID NATIVE SONS IN ADMISSION DAY PLANS

A large delegation from Redwood Parlor N. S. G. W. attended the joint 9th of September celebration at San Jose last Monday evening. A movement has been started by the Native Sons of the state to preserve the Butano forest consisting of ten thousand acres of virgin timber. The three divisions will depict in several floats the big trees of the forest, showing the growth, the devastation when burned or cut down and the recreational feature displaying tents and happy children playing romping beneath the giant redwoods. It is believed this will put over the thought of preserving the trees for future generations. The Native Sons and Daughters of California should be commended for the part they are taking in this noble cause. At the meeting on Monday evening a personal letter was read from President Herbert Hoover, commending the parlors of the state in their noble work. A copy of this letter is to be sent broadcast throughout the state.

JOINT CLUB MEETING HEARS OF SUNNYVALE BASE FIGHT

Congressman Free Tells Lions, Kiwanis and Exchangites Of Battles Waged In Congress To Secure Dirigible Base For This Section of California

In a stirring address before the combined service clubs of Redwood City at the Emerald Lake Golf Club Tuesday night, Congressman Arthur M. Free of this district, related the story of the great battle waged in Washington to locate the Pacific Coast $5,000,000 dirigible base at Sunnyvale in Santa Clara county. Congressman Free, who led the uphill fight for Sunnyvale against overwhelming odds from southern California, favoring Camp Kearney at San Diego, was given a tremendous ovation when he was presented to the club men by Attorney Norman M. Menefee, president of the Redwood City Lions Club, under whose auspices the meeting was held.

Step by step the speaker outlined the campaign of investigation carried on by him and his associates from northern California that finally resulted in convincing the authorities in Washington that the Santa Clara valley offered the finest site in the world for a dirigible base, and brought about the setting aside in 1929 of the order of Secretary of Navy Adams limiting the dirigible base site to the Los Angeles territory.

Congressman Free pointed out the natural advantages of the Sunnyvale base over other proposed sites—its mild and equitable climate, its constancy of winds, its visibility, nearness to sea level, its protection from attack by airplanes, transportation, its bowl shape and its ability to grow a turf field. During nine months of the year the wind in the Santa Clara valley blows in one direction and during the other three months in the opposite direction.

Governmental reports show that the Sunnyvale site has the greatest visibility of any other part of the world, said Congressman Free. Dur-278 days of the year, a dirigible could land at Sunnyvale at any hour, morning, noon or night and during the remainder of the year the craft could land at some time during the day.

The dirigible is no longer an experiment, declared Congressman Free; it is an established thing and the time is coming when it will displace the airplane as a mode of transportation, because it is safer. Its value in time of war was also stressed by the speaker. Free said he believed that it will not be long before we see a dirigible factory located somewhere in this part of the San Francisco bay area.

The fight on the dirigible base, regardless of the outcome, has resulted in untold benefits for northern California. It has advertised northern California, its climate and other characteristics, to the entire world, and has resulted in bringing together the various organizations in this section of the state to work for their common interests.

Mayor Daniel R. Stafford was present at the meeting and in a brief talk lauded the splendid work of Congresman Free in behalf of the Sunnyvale site and Redwood harbor, pointing out how the local representative had succeeded in securing an appropriation from Congress for the dredging of the channel here.

Sam H. Winklebleck, president of the Kiwanis Club, and W. H. Doxsee, president of the Exchange Club, also spoke briefly.

Over a hundred service club men turned out to hear Congressman Free.

Rolph Popular in the South

By D. E. O'KEEFE

From information just received from the southern portion of the state it is certain that Mayor James Rolph, Jr., candidate for the republican nomination for governor, will carry the City of Los Angeles by a substantial vote and may get the votes of the county. Should he accomplish this there is no doubt of the Mayor's election on August 26.

It now seems apparent that nothing short of a miracle will stop Rolph from being the next governor of California. There is an upward swing of the Rolph strength in every part of California, according to keen political observers who are watching the three-cornered battle for the republican gubernatorial nomination. From every portion of the state come reports of a distinct leaning toward the San Francisco mayor, as the strongest candidate.

The thoroughness with which Rolph is covering the state in person and frankly discussing the issues of the campaign in the business like fashion that he has directed the San Francisco Municipal Government for nearly twenty years past, is the best "sales talk" that can possibly be made, according to this observer.

This information dovetails in with that of representatives from every county in California; indicating to the Rolph managers that their candidate is driving home the message of practicability of State Government—something that California is greatly in need of at this particular period of excessive taxes and disturbed economic conditions.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., dismissed the petty plea for sectional votes in a forcible manner the other day when, speaking to an audience at Pasadena, he told 3000 or more persons that he "did not play politically for the votes of any particular section but that he hoped he might be elected to the governorship on the promise of being a fair Governor to all of the State." Then, becoming more explicit, Rolph declared, "There are no sections to California except those created by politicians for propaganda purposes. The quicker we in California forget all sectionalism and work for the good of the entire state, the better off every part of the state will be."

From reports received at the Rolph headquarters at San Mateo, it is believed that Rolph will carry every precinct in San Mateo county and that his plurality in the county will be close to 10,000 votes. No doubt San Mateo county will be the Rolph banner county of the state.

Overemphasis of "Saving"

By S. W. STRAUS
President American Society for Thrift

There is a difference between "thrift" and "saving" and to overemphasize and exaggerate the importance of the latter just now is not within the meaning of true thrift.

It should be borne in mind that no man or woman can be considered thrifty who does not save money. This is a fundamental concerning which there can be no argument but to say that you are thrifty simply because you save money would be as ridiculous as to say that you have a fine home because you have built a good foundation for it.

Let us understand then that after we have saved our money we are by no means through with the obligation we owe to our own self-interest. We must study how to employ that money so that it will mean the most for us and we must study also how to improve our minds, conserve our physical strength, master the tasks that lie before us, adapt ourselves to our surroundings, and, in short, keep ourselves ever moving along the pathway of progress.

Let us cease confounding "saving" and "thrift" because in so doing we are very apt to create a misleading impression. Save, yes; but when you have done that you have only begun to be thrifty.

This is particularly true just at this time when there may be a tendency on the part of some to lean over backwards in saving and thus interfere with the return of general business activity.

It is well to understand that the phrases "to save" and "to be thrifty" do not denote synonymous conditions. If they did mean the same thing, all that any of us would need do to make personal advancement would be to save our money. We should need give no thought to matters of health, the efficient employment of time, education, travel, recreation and various other points that must constantly be kept in mind by those who are truly thrifty.

'Tis not what man does which exalts him, but what man would do!—Robert Browning.

Unqualfiied Endorsement

It is seldom in these days that a public officer can serve that fickle master, the common people, for a full term and not be reproached with some trivial misconduct. The life of a public official is somewhat like like that of the proverbial gold fish, constantly in the public view. To find an officer, therefore, who has served time after time in one of the most important offices in a busy and growing county such as this, and yet in whose entire administration no person, not even those in an opposing camp, can show a single act or deed not in accord with the best interests of the office, is indeed remarkable.

Such, though, is the record of our county clerk, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Kneese. The greater part of the dealings of the county clerk are with the attorneys of this county and of San Francisco. Mrs. Kneese has been accorded an unqualified endorsement signed by members of the San Mateo County Bar Association, testifying to the high regard held for her by all members of the legal profession in this county. She has received the unqualified endorsement of Judge George H. Buck, judge of the superior court of this county. She has received the highest commendation from attorneys outside of San Mateo county, a commendation which has been responsible for her becoming known throughout the state as "the best county clerk in California."

Endorsed to the fullest by attorneys both within and without the limits of the county which she serves and by the superior judge of the court in which she serves as clerk, but one endorsement remains to Mrs. Kneese. In addition to her dealings with the attorneys in the court of this county, her office deals directly in many ways with the people of San Mateo county. It is from these that the final endorsement of Mrs. Kneese and her administration of office must come. This endorsement will be given by the people at the primary election.

Mrs. Kneese has conducted the office of county clerk without reproach. There is a record, and on that record she will stand. It has been stated in propaganda issued in opposition to this candidate that "It is not a question of personality, efficiency, excellence of disposition or civility."

Too frequently this is the case and candidates lacking these qualities are sometimes elected. But we hold that a record of "personality, efficiency, excellence of disposition and civility" in a public officer is one not to be overlooked when it comes time for re-election. When to this is added the unqualified endorsement of all whose business takes them within the office of the county clerk, then but one thing remains in all justice and fairness—the officer who has made such a record must be retained.

Fire in 1930

During June, the fire loss in the United States was $31,816,266—$1,787,397 less than in June, 1929. We have, however, nothing to be proud of, as this is the first month in 1930 in which such a decrease has been recorded. The total loss for the first six months of the year was $242,339,771, corresponding to $230,092,795 for the same period last year. In short, we have so far destroyed over 12 million dollars worth of property more than in 1929.

It cannot be too often repeated that the United States has the most gigantic fire loss, both total and per capita, in the world. Our carelessness in the matter of fire has become a national menace—and a national disgrace. Every year we sacrifice thousands of lives and half a billion dollars in property values. And, at the most conservative estimate, at least 80 per cent of this waste is entirely unnecessary.

Two factors are responsible for the waste—carelessness and ignorance. It is carelessness that allows us to drop cigarettes where we finish with them; let wiring go unattended; pile trash in corners, and the like. Ignorance has bred the attitude of "Let the insurance company pay for it" as if insurance companies could pay losses without, in turn, collecting from policy holders! It should be thoroughly understood that every fire, whether or not the property is insured, represents a permanent economic loss that must be paid for, directly or indirectly, by the entire community.

Our fire loss will go down when American citizens take common sense precautions in their homes and places of business, and when they are no longer deaf and blind to the simple rules of fire prevention.

The Inquisitors

"We have been witnessing a committee of the Senate for nearly a year having citizens before it by the score," says John T. Flynn in an article in Harper's on "Senate Inquisitors and Private Rights," "entering their offices, seizing their papers—the most private, rooting through the documents with glee, putting the witnesses on the rack, exploring by means of unrestrained and merciless cross examination their personal opinions and their confidential affairs, harrying them, insulting them, degrading them, violating not only all the sacred guarantees laid down in the Constitution but trampling under foot every principle of good manners which ought to control civilized gentlemen in their dealings with one another . . . ."

Russia, under the Romanoffs or the Soviets, affords no more striking example of disregard of individual rights and liberties than this. Unless the American people take decisive action democracy may be made as much a mockery in our own country as in Russia.

It Seems to Me by HEYWOOD BROUN

A week-end in the Pocono Mountains, where New Jersey and Pennsylvania drowse in the sunlight and blink languidly at each other across the crystal waters of the Delaware:

You're pretty sure to meet up with Elmer, the innkeeper. Most everybody in the mountains knows Elmer. He's a sort of cross between G. B. Shaw and Tom Edison. There isn't much that Elmer doesn't know about things, and there isn't much that he can't do. Elmer'll sit on the sprawling veranda of the inn with you and talk politics and science and music, and even sports if you insist, until the cows come home. Personally Elmer thinks the country is all right when you get right down to the bottom of things, and what good is it a-going to do to just sit back and bellyache about things, anyhow? You don't think that's a-going to make 'em any different, do you? Well, if you do you're pretty much mistaken—that's all.

A Dream Comes to Elmer.

Right now Elmer's getting ready to put his newest contrivance on the market. A bunch of powerful bankers from Allentown way are going to finance it. He calls it cro-golf. Loosely speaking, it's a combination of croquet and golf. You hit a large wooden ball with a croquet mallett, but instead of knocking it through wickets you sink it in holes, as on putting greens. The idea came to Elmer one night in a dream. It was the strangest thing. You never would have guessed that anything unusual was going to happen. It was just a plain, common, ordinary night, and yet Elmer hadn't been in bed more than an hour or so—well, it didn't seem any longer than an hour or so—well, it didn't seem any longer than an hour or so—anyhow, though you never can tell about these things. Sometimes you can go to bed and it won't seem like you've been sleeping more'n ten minutes when it's time to get up. Well, anyhow, it wasn't hardly any time after Elmer had gotten to bed when he fell to dreaming that he was out in front of the inn knocking a croquet ball around a sort of miniature golf course and having the darnedest time of his life.

The End of Mr. Thomas Thumb.

Of course, a fellow's just plumb crazy if he pays attention to everything he dreams, because nine times out of ten—yes, you can make it ninety-nine times out a houndred—they don't mean a solitary thing, but every once in a while a dream will come to a fellow that is more than a dream—it's a message—and then's the time to act. This is the way Elmer feels about dreams, and so when the mysteries of cro-golf were unfolded before him in his sleep he went right to work and built a course on a lawn in front of the inn. Later on Elmer went down to Washington and had the idea patented, and now nobody can build a course unless Elmer says it's all right. A day or so ago a fellow from the city was in to see Elmer and offered him $50,000 or some such sum, for the patent, but Elmer wouldn't sell. "One of these days the newspapers will be writing me up as the man who drove the Tom Thumb courses out of business," says Elmer, sort of joking-like, "and it'll be a good thing." And maybe it will.

Evertyhing Is Jake.

Another gentleman of no little local renown you are pretty apt to meet in the mountains is Jake, the guide. Only Jake's something more than just a guide. He's a humorist and a philosopher. Say, if you think Will Rogers is funny, well, you ought to hear Jake. It isn't so much what Jake says, as how he says it. "You remember the old story about the colored boy whose lawyer told him they couldn't put him in jail for something or other, and the colored boy answered, "Maybe they can't, mister white man, but here I is." Well, sir, Jake's been telling that one since he was knee-high to a grasshopper, and if it wasn't hissen from the start, a mule can't kick." Jake's got a lot of stories, but some of them—well, they just aren't what some folks would call parlor stories. A man who meets as many different types of people as a professional guide does has to have an assortment of stories in order to keep everybody in good humor, and you would be surprised how many people insit on Jake as their guide. Half the time, as Jake says, it looks as if they don't want a guide at all but a humorist.

Well, Sir, You'd 'a' Died!

The funniest thing happened the other day. As everybody knows, there's deer in the mountains, and Jake says there's bear, but the townspeople kind of think this is just one of Jake's little jokes, because nobody ever comes back with a bear, so it must be that old Mister Bear is a slick article—eh?

Well, anyhow, the other day Jake is sitting out on his front porch pulling away at his pipe and watching the sun drop down behind the hills when he sees what he thinks is a strange looking wild animal coming down the road leading from the mountains. Now, you should never be surprised at what you see coming out of mountains, because, as Jake says, there must be animals back in there that nobody even ever heard tell of.

So Jake sits there on the porch and watches, and what he sees is a short, bull-necked, barrel-chested ogre walking on hind legs and swinging a pair of arms that almost dragged in the dust.

You couldn't blame Jake for thinking a lot of crazy things and, for once in his life, not seeing anything funny in the situation. But it turned out that this time the joke was on jake, because it wasn't any gorilla or any strange wild animal at all. It was a prize fighter from the city. A fellow Paulino, who is training up in the mountains. Jake says he'd rather meet a bear face to face—and no foolin'.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery leave home to seek their fortunes in New York.

Sally's brother, Bert, who is in love with Lois, follows them.

Chapter 5

By MILDRED BARBOUR
Illustrated by HUGH HUTTON

SNOW MAN

Sally, with a comforter wrapped around her shoulders, because the apartment was cold, sat on the foot of the bed and counted the coins in her purse. Lois, huddled under the covers for warmth, watched her with wide, inscrutable eyes.

"One dollar and seventy-five cents!" announced Sally.

"Look in my bag and count what's there," said Lois. She knew only too well what was there, but she always hoped that she might have overlooked a quarter, or that a dime might have slipped down into the lining, which was worn in places.

Sally counted. "Gosh, you're a millionairess! Three dollars and ten cents."

Lois figured mentally. Let's see . . . . The rent isn't due until next Friday. Your one dollar and my three will easily buy us food until then. But, after that, star of my heart, the deluge!"

Sally said cheerfully, scrambling off the bed: "Well, this is another day. Maybe we'll have luck. Anyway, I'll hie me on my round of the studios. Some director may be searching desperately today for a gray-eyed, blonde-haired type of ingenue and I may walk right into a star role!"

"And some lunchroom proprietor," murmured Lois grimly, as she slid out of bed, "may be simply sighing his heart out for a green-eyed hash-slinger. I'm on my way!"

When she and Sally, after a scanty breakfast of coffee and toast, because the coffee can was nearly empty and the bread had to be made to last another day, left the apartment, Lois almost wished she'd married Bert Todd the previous week when he'd begged her to. For a regular blizzard was driving through the canyons of the city, lashed by a gale that swept in from the Atlantic. In the darkness of the flat, she and Sally hadn't guessed the state of of the weather.

Sally grasped, as they plunged against the gale and slipped and slid with the blinding snow in their faces: "We'll never survive this long. I'm soaked to the knees already."

"I sort of hear pneumonia chirping behind me, myself," Lois replied, turning her back to the wind momentarily, to get herself and her garments straightened out.

"Here goes that four dollars for subway fare," decided Sally recklessly. But Lois was more practical.

"Don't!"

"Don't be silly! It's much better to go home and wait for decent weather."

Sally agreed to that and turned back with alacrity. But Lois added: "There were several ads in the morning paper — only a couple of blocks from here. I can manage to get that far, I think."

So she left Sally and went staggering on through the blizzard. Both Galley Nine situations, when she arrived, panting and redeyed, had already been filled. She was filled with discouragement, not so much because the two petty jobs were no longer open, but because it indicated the abundant supply of applicants, when such work was snapped up so quickly on a stormy day.

There were one or two other addresses on her list, so she struggled on against the gale. The streets were almost deserted.

Lois, nearing her destination, attempted to turn a corner. The wind caught her and bore her into a drift in the center of a street, where a motor-car missed her by an inch. Lois struggled to regain her feet, saw the man behind the wheel leap out. In a moment he was bending over her.

"Have I hit you? Are you badly hurt?"

Lois had regained her feet. She essayed to brush the snow from her face and garments.

"You didn't hit me. The wind upset me. I——"

"Why, it's Miss Montgomery!" exclaimed Phillip Harding III getting a good look at her. "Whatever are you doing in New York?"

Her impulse was to say: "Looking for a job." But she laughed and said: "Why are you driving a car in this beastly blizzard."

He made a grimace. "Oh, I'm trying my hand at being a business man, just to please my family . . . . I say, hop into the bus, where it's fairly warm, and let me drive you wherever you were going. It's mighty good to see you. I was as much knocked over as you were, a minute ago when I found you in this drift."

He helped her into the car —— a beautiful sedan. Lois's skirt and her shoes were sodden. Harding wrapped a fur rug around her.

"You're soaked! How far had you been walking and, for the love of Mike, why — on a day like this? Where were you going? Home?"

She told him the truth. He stared "A job in a lunchroom?"

"Well, she said, "it's the only work in which I can really claim to have had experience, and the proprietor of the last place where I worked said he'd give me a reference."

"A lunchroom!" he repeated, shocked. "Oh, I say, you were secretary to Mrs. Ten Eyck. You can do that."

She shook her head smilingly. "That was a berth in a million. I have no shorthand. It's the first thing they ask for."

"Learn it — it's easy," suggested Philip Harding III, who would have been the last one to act on his own suggestion.

She laughed again. "One must eat while one learns."

He looked at her, aghast. The problem of food was something that had never troubled young Mr. Harding.

"Let me——" He reached toward his pocket impulsively. But Lois stopped him.

"Please — you're very kind, but I couldn't accept any — assistance. Really! Neither could Sally."

"She's with you, too?" Mr. Harding had a better memory, it seemed, than Mr. Frisby. "Where is she?"

"At home. If you're going to be so kind as to take me there, perhaps you would care to stop for a moment to see her."

"It's you I want to see," declared Harding recklessly, at the same time uncomfortably conscious of the paternal warning that had accompanied his involuntary departure from Mrs. Ten Eyck's house-party. "But I tell you what we'll do. We'll collect Sally and have lunch together, we three."

"But I thought you said that you were working," protested Lois.

"I am," he grinned. "Two hours in the morning. I'm a vice-president in my Dad's bank. I open my mail, which consists of advertisements, or a couple of touches, dictate a letter, just for form's sake, and beat it for the day."

An hour later Sally was lunching in one of the places where she had longed to dine, with Harding and Lois, who looking ravishingly pretty in her best black frock, with a lacquer-red flower tucked under her chin.

Young Harding couldn't keep his eyes for her. Sally, the romantic, began to dream dreams in which she saw herself as a bridesmaid at a Fifth Avenue wedding. She was too new to New York to realize that the restaurant Harding had chosen for the luncheon-party was off his beaten track.

Scientist Finds Secret for Cold Light Production

Long Sought After Means of Illumination Claimed By L. A. Man

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14 (UP)—The current unemployment problem which has heretofore been limited to the confines of this earth, may shortly extend itself to Old Sol himself.

While Primier Ramsey McDonald seeks means to fill the British dinner bucket and Herbert Hoover hunts a solution to American unployment, a young Los Angeles scientist promises to displace the Sun as a light maker.

Today, before a gathering of the learned men of two universities, Dr. William George Schnell, 28, will demonstrate his new formula for producing light as bright as the rays of the sun, without the use of electricity.

Dr. Schnell, a graduate of the University of Colorado and the University of Dresden announced his discovery, which incorporates the use of atoms similar to those of which the sun is believed composed, after eight and a half years of research and experimentation.

In informal demonstration he illuminated a room with the compounds of his formula and succeeded in burning a piece of wood by holding a magnifying glass between a test tube containing his solution and the object. In this experiment the rays from the "sun tube" acted exactly as do the rays of the sun when concentrated by the magnifying glass.

"The compounds in my invention are composed in part of the same atoms as those in the sun," Dr. Schnell said, "and in some ways this solution even has the sun cheated for it will produce either hot or cold rays.

"I have satisfied some of the most exacting scientists that my claims are entirely true," he said. I have shown representatives of some of the world's most important electrical concerns that I have at least discovered the secret of light without power through captivation of the sun's own rays."

by combining a secret chimical element, Dr. Schnell has duplicated the X-Ray by sending light rays through thes human body without any ill effects.

"And yet," Dr. Schnell declared, "My formula is very simple, combining certain minerals with oils and acids."

He said he believed that once his invention is commercialized, it will eventually eliminate all forms of outdoor electrical signs and lights, illumate homes and cook food.

Dr. Schnell stumbled upon the base for his formula by accident, he said while working in the University of Colorado laboratory as a student, his work took him to Germany, where he received his doctor's degree and containued to study in Europe making arduous trips into the Ural mountains in Russia in search of minerals for his compound.

Tractor Display At Fair To Show Many New Types

By OSGOOD MURDOCK

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 14—Visitors to the California State Fair this year who view the comprehensive exhibit of farm implements and tractors will witness a revolutionary change and trend in the design of general purpose tractors and row crop power farm implements.

Although the development of general purpose or row crop tractors has been going on for several years past, within the last twelve months all important manufacturers have re-designed their tillage, planting and harvesting equipment adapted to general purpose tractors, and there will be exhibited at the State Fair as available during the coming year, a far greater range of implements than ever before, designed along new and in many cases revolutionary lines.

Recent developments by leading manufacturers have brought out such tractor-operated row and crop tools as three and four-row corn planters with fertilizer attachments; two and four-row cotton cultivators, three-row corn cultivator equipment with shovels; a general purpose tractor mower and sweep rake; four-row beet and bean cultivators; two-row power potato diggers; two-row potato cultivators; two-row cotton strippers; a tractor operated cotton duster; a two-row potato planter, and other special equipment adapted to general purpose tractors, particularly for row crop cultivation.

Modern scientific farmers now have the advantage through many of the leading farm machinery manufacturers, of being offered tools for a complete system of farming, each following the other ,each depending upon the other ,and each scaled and adapted to fit into the studied and economical system.

The fourteenth annual Farm Machinery Show under the auspices of the Tractor and Implement club of California will be a feature of the State Fair which will be held at Sacramento, August 30th-September 7th.

RAPID CITY, S. D., (UP)—A natural ice well, 172 feet underground from which crystal clear blocks of ice can be cut in hottest weather is occasioning much interest here. The well is located at the gypsub plaster mill at Black Hawk seven miles north of here. In digging for gypsum at the plant, workmen sunk a shaft at the end of which a large hole was excacated in taking out gypsum. This filled with water to a depth of 8 feet which freezes in summer and is coated with thick ice.

STATE'S MINERALS STILL IMPORTANT IN COMMERCE

State Leads Nation in Production of Minerals During Last Year; San Mateo County's Mineral Production For 1929 was $1,863,838

By ELWOOD SQUIRES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 1[illegible] (UP)—California leads the United States in variety of mineral products, with a total annual value of $366,781,394, according to a statement by Walter W. Bradley, state mineralogist.

San Mateo county showed a total of $1,863,838 in mineral resources value last year, the report showed.

"Although California is exceeded in the total annual value of her mineral output, it is surpassed only by four or five other states, most of them being great coal states east of the Mississippi River." Bradley declared.

"Every county has minerals of commercial value, with some active production reported to the state division of mines and mining from all of the 58 counties.

Petroleum is responsible for position of the first four counties, which were Los Angeles ,Kern, Orange, and Ventura. San Bernardino was fifth with cement, silver, potash, borax, mineral water and tungsten produced there. Fresno county was sixth, with petroleum as the chief product.

Gold, once the principal mineral product of California, was responsible for Yuba county coming eighth on the list.

"Twenty four counties each had a total mineral value of more than $1,000,000," Bradley continued.

"Cement is an important item in nine of these counties, gold in four, and miscellaneous stone, granite and soda in one each. In the point of variety and diversity, San Bernardino county led all others with a total of 23 different mineral products on her commercial list, followed by Los Angeles with 20 products.

California leads all states in production of gold, quicksilver and platinum. It has alternated in the lead with Colorado in tungsten and with Oklahoma in petroleum. For many years this state was the sole domestic source of borax, chromite and magnesite, and still leads the nation in production of these materials.

Boys and Girls Offered Prizes At State Fair

Boys and girls of San Mateo county, here is an opportunity for you to win cash prizes at the California State Fair for your model airplanes, boats, dressed dolls and pieced quilts.

LONDON PHONE GIRLS SPEAK IN MANY TONGUES

Extension of Communications Network Soon To Girdle Entire Globe

LONDON, Aug. 1[illegible] (UP)—"Allo Paris, donnez moi Louvre quarante-sept dix-neuf, sil vous plait."

"Was haben sie gesagt, Berlin?"

"Attention, Madrid, Londres esta listo."

"Helio, Bombay Central, put this call through to Burma, please."

"Tokio? Ohio, banzi!"

Not a mixed grill of try-and-learn-it-yourself language lessons but a leaf from the dairy of a telephone operator. London talks to almost everybody these days, only three and a half years after the first call from here to New York, and with the extension of telephone service to Japan, South Africa, India, Australia, and New Zealand, this city will become the hub of a telephone system encircling the earth.

Work already has been started on extension of service from Australia to New Zealand which will bring an additional 180,000 phones on to the international circuit.

Negotiations are in progress for a service to India which can start operation in a few months after the preliminary completion. Egypt can join the international link any time she feels like it and extensions to Palestine and Transjordania would be the next logical development.

In Berlin the Telefunken company is experimenting with a radio telephone service to Tokio which means that London can "plug in" if the connection is permanently established. The German organization already has established a service to South America and plans to install a transmitter in Nanking to enable Chinese to sit in braugartens and chat with the old folks at home.

When South Africa is brought into the worldwide hookup there will be approximately only 128,000 telephones in Asia, and a few thousand in Africa and Oceania outside the international telephonic allience. The service from London around the world will be virtually complete in a few months. Even small isolated islands have lost that feeling of being distinctly out of touch with the rest of the world. The Channel Islands will be connected with the mainland by the end of the year. Already the Grecian Islands can call up Athens and Raratonga chats with Wellington.

The increasing habit of one part of the world wishing to talk to another part thousands of miles away is responsible for the fact that over 90 per cent of the world's telephones are connected with each other. It is estimated that civilization has produced some 34,000,000 transmitters and an equal number of receivers. If all the telephone wires in the world were laid end to end they would no doubt stretch for quite a way. But more important is the fact that London's future telephone operators will have to add Japanese and Indian to their linguistic accomplishments.

GOVERNMENT DECLARES WAR ON MAN EATING LIONS

NAIROBI, Aug. 1[illegible] (UP)—A war of extermination has been declared by the government against man-eating lions which, in a few weeks this summer, claimed 20 victims, terriorizing the natives of the Ankole and Masaka districts of Uganda.

An expidition has been sent to the district under the leadership of Capt. Salmon, noted hunter and game ranger, to wipe out the marauders, which had become so bold that they carried off many of their victims in broad daylight.

Similar action had to be taken seven years ago when lions were making constant raids on native seetlements.

MENLO PARK

Miss Myra Kurtz, the pretty daughter of th epopular city clerk, has been appointed to a temporary position in the office of Elizabeth M. Kneese, county clerk of San Mateo County. Miss Kurtz is to resume her studies at the San Mateo Junior College next month. Mrs. Kneese who is a candidate to succeed herself has always been generous to Menlo Park in the distribution of her limited patronage, her vote here should be very pronounced.

The Rolph for governor club has secured a membership of three hundred and is still getting signers. Next week the organization is to make an active canvass for votes for the popular mayor. It is the hope of the members to give Rolph 600 out of the 800 republican votes in Menlo Park. The people owe this recognition to him for what he has done for the county and they are going to give it to him.

The city council met Tuesday evening, all members being present. The Native Sons and Daughters were given permission to use Santa Cruz avenue on the evening of August 23, for their annual carnival.

The California Protective Roadside Beauty in a communication thanked the council for legislating against sign boards and the prohibition of cards on the highways.

In a long communication Mrs. Catherine Plate complained that no attention was paid to her request for a permit to erect a building on her property on University avenue. She wa stold by the building inspector last April that her property would be taken by the city to extend Oak avenue. She offered the property for $1185, actual cost. The matter was referred to the city attorney.

The budget was discussed but no action was taken. The budget as prepared will be adopted at a meeting to be held on August 13.

Bert J. Mehl was appointed city engineer on motion of Anderson, seconded by Dale. Blake inquired if there were no other applications for the place. The mayor informed him there were no others. The new engineer is a practical engineer and recently supervised the building of $2,000,000 worth of paved highway in San Diego county.

Frank Love tendered his resignation as building, electric and plumbing inspector. The new city engineer was appointed to fill the vacancy. The engineer's salary was not fixed, but as building inspector he will receive half of the fees taken in. The appointment was made on motion of Crane seconded by Dale.

Kenneth Smitten, representing the Association Oil Company, asked for a permit to remove the service station from its present location to the old Coxin corner. The concern had bought the property and expected to spend $30,000 in improvements on the corner. The company also wanted a permit to remove the store to the extreme end of the lot and spend $3,000 in repairing and improving the building. The council was of the opinion that a class C building should be erected and that the frame structure removed or wrecked. The present temporary zoning ordinance called for this. After a lengthy discussion that matter was left to the mayor and the city engineer who are to confer with Mr. Hill engineer for the oil company. The council made it plain that no hardships should be placed on the company.

The local insurance agents were invited to make offers for policies about to expire.

On August 25 the report of the superintendent of streets in his work in destroying grass on vacant land will he heard.

Mayor Weeden stated that about sixty one per cent of the property owners in Stanford Park had signed a petition to have street improvements done there. No action was taken upon the petition that was in possession of the clerk.

Chief Love was allowed $60 a month to provide gas and oil for the city's automobiles.

Chief of Police Love's report for the past month was read as follows: Licenses collected $694, Dog licenses $88.50, Vehicle violations $676.50, other fines $95, miscellaneous $35.90, total collections $1,639.90.

The Peninsula Material Company's team defeated a nine from the Peninsula Creamery in an indoor ball game at Palo Alto Wednesday evening by a 2 to 3 score. Three games were played to decide the championship. The former aggregation is composed of the Morey boys, players well known to the sporting fraternity. A banquet will be given to the visitors by the vanquished next Tuesday evening at Palo Alto.

Jack Collins, president of the San Mateo County Motorcycle Club, announces that his organization will participate in the hill climb contest at El Cerrito on Sunday. The club's headquarters are in Menlo Park. Collins hopes to win the contest on Sunday.

E. Britton, manager of the Bear Gulch Water Company, left for the old City of Mexico on Tuesday by boat and will return in two weeks after seeing the sights of the southern republic.

A committee of native sons from the local parlor consisting of F. W. Johnson, D. E. O'Keefe, George Murray J. E. Bracesco and Albert Arrellanes went to San Jose Monday evening to confer with the September 9th celebration committee to arrange for the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco. Three counties, San Mateo, Santa Cruz and Santa Clara are to join in the celebration, each having floats depicting the Butano Forest consisting of ten thousand acres on the coast side of the county which the native sons of the state are endeavoring to purchase by donations to be secured from public spirited citizens. The preservation of this fine stand of redwood trees for future generations would be a splendid thing and the cause should be encouraged by everyone. The three divisions will visualize the beauties of the forest, its destruction and its use for recreational purposes.

A Young-for-Governor Club was organized in the parish hall on Tuesday evening by admirers of the governor living in East Palo Alto, Atherton and Menlo Park. The officers elected were as follows: Chairman, Lowery S. Howard, director of the Menlo School for Boys; secretary, Alan H. Robertson, attorney, North Palo Alto; treasurer, E. Hutson Hart, Menlo Park.

The executive cimmittee consists of the following: Charles G. Ellis of Menlo Park J. H. Stubbe of Ravenswood; George A. Montell of Stanford Park; Alan Robertson of North Palo Alto; A. H. Anderson, Menlo Park, city council; Chief Mull, Atherton; Mrs. Leroy Nickel, Menlo Park; C. H. Steer and Miss Meta Kugeler, Menlo Park. During the closing days of the campaign an active canvass of the voters is to be made. Speakers will be here from San Francisco to address the voters.

The annual carnival of the Native Sons and Daughters will take place on Santa Cruz Avenue on the evening of August 23. The usual carnival spirit is to prevail. Booths of all kinds will lure the pleasure seeker and the street dancing will be a feature that is certain to be enjoyed by the young folks. The proceeds are to go to the homeless children fund of the society.

This charming three-act comedy is to be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings, August 21 and 22, in the new auditorium of the Menlo grammar school on the highway. following the wedding will be held at the Hamilton home on Albion Road. The wedding party will include the Misses Edith Chamberlain, Barbara Pond and Kathleen Pringle, all of Woodside.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry MacArthur and their two sons have returned from a trip into New Mexico lasting about six weeks.

Miss Margaret Stewart returned this week to Berkeley for the opening of the University session. She is a senior at the University and has made a record there of which Woodside is proud.

The members of the Volunteer Fire Department of Woodside will give a card party at the school assembly hall on this Friday night.

Word has been received from Mrs. Emma Andreen who is visiting her son at Tulsa, Oklahoma, that she will be returning to Woodside the first of September.

The theatre being built by George Whittell on his estate here is nearing completion and makes a handsome appearance in its setting among the oaks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holmes of San Francisco were visitors at their place here over the week-end.

Mrs. George Shine and her daughter, Alberta are at Capitola.

The work of re-conditioning the Woodside School is about completed and school will open on the 18th. The interior has been redecorated and a new tile roof has taken the place of the old roof much improving the appearance of the building

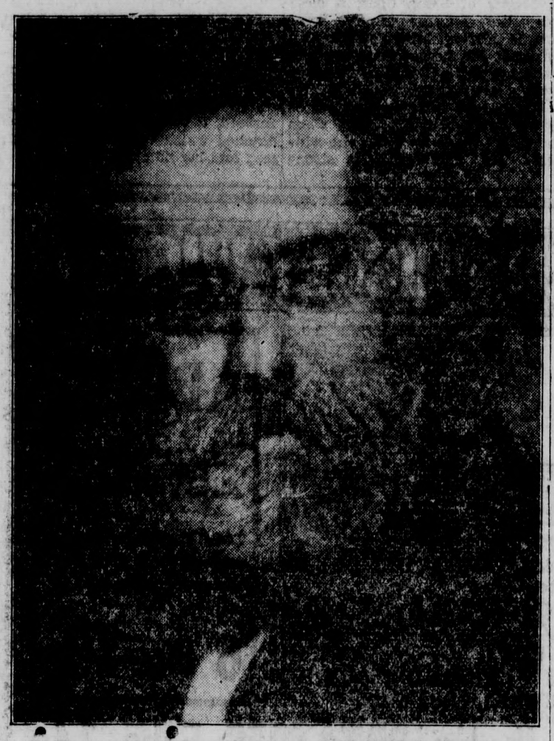
FINAL CONCERT OF SEASON SUNDAY AT WOODLAND THEATRE



E. Fernandez Arbos, Director of Madrid Orchestra

The final concert of the fifth season of open air concerts in the Woodland Theatre at Hillsborough will be given next Sunday afternoon with E. Fernandez Arbos, director of the Madrid Symphony Orchestra as guest conductor.

Climaxing the most successful and popular season ever presented by The Philharmonic Society of San Mateo county, this concert is certain to be enjoyed by a capacity audience of Peninsula music lovers who will be eager to take advantage of this single opportunity to see and hear one of the greatest and much beloved European conductors whose reputation as a composer and also as a great teacher equals his renown as an orchestral director.

For his first concert in California, Mr. Arbos has arranged a program which is a delightful combination of some of the familiar classics together with selections which represent music of his native country.

The first half of the program will include Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger' and the seventh Symphony of Beethoven, which will enable the distinguished visitor to demonstrate his reading of works familiar to regular symphony concert patrons. The last half of the program will be given over to typical Spanish music for modern orchestra and a rare treat is in store for those who attend.

Of special interest will be one of numbers written by the composer-conductor himself the music of which, Mr. Arbos is bringing with him in manuscript form. This is the "Arabian Night" intermezzo. His arrangement and transcription for orchestra of "Triana" from the "Iberia" suite by Albenez is also to be included in this program.

Inasmuch as the Arbos program in San Francisco will differ form that given in the Woodland Theatre several numbers of the Sunday afternoon program will be heard at this time.

The complete program follows:

Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" ..... Wagner
Symphony No. 7 ..... Beethoven
La Procession du Rocio ..... Turina
Intermezzo from "Goyescas" ..... Grandaos
Intermezzo: "Arabian Night" ..... Arbos
"Triana" from Suite "Iberia" ..... Aloeni z-Arbos

CITY CIVIC CLUBS TO HOLD PICNIC AT MENLO PARK GROUNDS

The Central Council of Civic Clubs of San Francisco will pay a visit to Menlo Park to hold its first outdoor carnival on Sunday, August 17th in the Kuck gardens.

The picnic committee, headed by P. M. Shoaf of the Eureka Valley Promotion Association, is working hard and from all indications it is expected that there will be 2500 people at the picnic grounds. The reports of the subcommittees are most encouraging. The events committee, with E. J. Walt of the Upper Noe Valley Improvement club as chairman, plans a program of races and games of unusual interest and winners will be awarded prizes and there will be plenty of them. Dancing will be had all afternoon and the most popular music will be played.

Past President Dr. A. S. Musante, chairman of the Peninsula Co-operation section reported that he had received valuable assistance in the effort to have the proper contact made between the boosters of the west-side bay counties from John H. Sullivan, and Chief of Police Frank Love, Fred Drake of San Carlos, and Judge John McGrath, present of the San Mateo chamber of commerce. At the latter's solicitation the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce is expected to aid in this movement.

Vacation
fares & trains

Southern Pacific takes a personal interest in your vacation plans. Train schedules are arranged to give you maximum time there—to get you there and back swiftly and comfortably.

To many points, overnight Pullmans save the precious daylight hours for play.

Fares, too, are planned especially for vacations. Low summer roundtrips with 16-day return limits are just right for a two-weeks' vacation. Week-end and Sunday roundtrips to nearby points are proportionately lower.

A few examples of 16-day roundtrips:

REAL ESTATE MEN TO HEAR JAS. ROLPH

The D. D. Bohannan organization that is selling property in Menalto Park has about sold out the tract and will in a few weeks move to Belle Haven to begin the sale of that subdivision. Mr. Bohannan, head of the organization, is a land developer and subdivider with few equals in the state. Though quite young he has established a reputation as a real estate analysist, second to none in the state. The manner in which he disposed of over seven hundred lots in Menalto Park in less than a year and a half speaks well for his ability and the salesmanship of his organization. Prizes were offered during the month of July to the one who sold the greatest volume of property. As a consequence of this competition among the salesmen over $50,000 worth of property was sold that month. C. C. Cooper of Daly City won first prize, A. H. Madsen of San Francisco, second prize with W. G. Meiser of Santa Cruz, a close competitor. Other winners were Mrs. H. Harvey, Miss Nell Molfino, Oakland; Mr. League and Mrs. Erb, managers of the Oakland office. This evening the organization will give a banquet at Bellevue Hotel, 1505 Geary street, San Francisco, when the prizes are to be given the winners. This organization is strong for James Rolph for governor. At this banquet D. E. O'Keefe, one of the owners of Menalto Park, will introduce the Mayor, who will give a short address to the members of the organization, having a membership of 500. J. J. Sharon, county Rolph campaign manager and other Rolph boosters are to be present.
